1E PASSAGE

Read the passage below; then complete the exercise that follow it.

The Art of The Hustle

Most successful bread winners have many similarities. First off all of them are all finna' make a lot of money. While this is the main goal of any truly successful hustler the road to being one of the true real-ones on the road to greatness does not end there.

A skill needed on the road to the hustling hall of fame is the ability to stay low-key. Certain hustlers after achieving moderate levels of fame and influence, start tweakin' on the people around them e.g. Kanye West. Staying humble, and continuing to work even after you've achieved some success is quintessential to becoming one of the top hustlers in your sphere of influence.

Of course, most things that successful hustlers do after they make quite a bit of money is spend it on some clothes that really drip. Examples of clothes that would fit these descriptions are the brands Supreme, Gucci, and Versace. Of course, hustlers need to be careful that the clothes that they buy are not too extra. There is a very fine line between being a hustler, or a hardo.

Of course, there are many pitfalls in the art of the hustle. One of the biggest problems that befalls would be hustlers is people around them spilling too much tea. If your close associates are talking too much about your personal business a hustler may need to put these associates on-blast. If a hustler fails to keep his personal business personal then he or she may never achieve the ultimate goal of being one of the all-time greats.

One of the hallmarks of the hustler is the quality of the Jams he either creates or inspires. An example of someone who did not write his own raps, but inspired the raps that were written for him was Easy-E. Everyone knows that Ice Cube wrote most if not all of Easy-E's most successful raps. Still those raps were inspired by Easy-E so he was able to slay the verses written for him by Ice-Cube.

If you follow the instructions laid out here, and spend a significant amount of your time studying other great hustlers you may no-cap, be added to the hustling hall of fame. People will lose their minds when a true hustler pull's-up at the spot. Fail to follow these guidelines, and you may find yourself taking the L.

Answer each of the following questions in the form of a sentence. If a question does not contain a vocabulary word from this lesson's word list, use one in your answer. Use each word only once.

1. What is the main goal of any successful hustler?

2. List some things you could finna' do to make some money.

3. Where does the road to being a real-one end?

4. What is a very important skill on the road to becoming a successful hustler?

5. Any successful hustler should avoid what?

6. What are some examples of clothing companies that really drip?

7. A common pitfall of a would-be hustler is buying name brand clothing that is too?

8. If a hustler is not careful about his action what may he become?

9. What is one of the biggest pitfalls for a would-be hustler?

10. If a hustler's associates are acting inappropriately what may a hustler have to do?

11. A very successful hustler will inspire what around his associates?

12. Who was able to slay the versus written for him by Ice-Cube?

13. No-cap if you follow these instructions you may find yourself where?

14. What happens when a truly successful hustler pulls-up to the spot?

15. Why would a would-be hustler follow the rules outlined by the passage?

2E PASSAGE

Read the passage below; then complete the exercise that follow it.

Social Media Savvy

If you live a particularly boujee lifestyle, then you may find yourself dealing with issues that arise due to the pervasive nature of social media. Hopefully some of the tips explored in this passage will prevent you from finding yourself being cancelled, by your numerous social media followers.

If you really want to have an excellent social media savvy you must concern yourself with having the most dank memes possible. Do not hesitate to flex by posting them to the rest of your social media followers. Be wary and always double check the memes you are attempting to post. If your not careful you could accidently post basic memes. If you are known for having dank memes your social media following may grow.

Be careful about who you attempt to drag, with your memes. Some people who are subject of such scrutiny may decide to send-it in your direction. You may think some people wouldn't mind being the subject of your memes, but you never know who out there in cyber-space is really hangry.

While trying to cultivate your social media following be sure not to SKRRT to hard. Many people may feel isolated by your massive social media following. Instead remember the words of the great poet Radrick Davis, "don't get lost in the sauce." If you get lost, don't be surprised if you find many of your friends telling you to @-me. You may also get ghosted by your friends if you hit the gas pedal too hard.

Carefully consider all the advice in this passage, hopefully you may find yourself a G.O.A.T of social media. If you refuse to take the advice of this passage you may find others saying R.I.P. when you pass by them in the real world.

Answer each of the following questions in the form of a sentence. If a question does not contain a vocabulary word from this lesson's word list, use one in your answer. Use each word only once.

1. Social media can become quite pervasive when you live what kind of lifestyle?

2. What may the tips explored in this article help you avoid?

3. If you have very dank memes what may happen to your social media following?

4. If you find an extremely dank meme what should you do with this pictograph?

5. Why should you always double check your memes before you post them?

6. If you're not careful about who you drag what could possibly happen to you?

7. You never know when people in cyberspace are?

8. If you SKRRT too hard what are some of the possible consequences?

9. What great poet coined the term “Lost in the Sauce?”

10. If you follow the instructions in this article what may you be referred to as?

11. If you don’t follow the advice in this article what may people say about you?

3E PASSAGE

Read the passage below; then complete the exercise that follow it.

The Troll Under the Bridge

Some salty people on the internet have nothing better to do but bother others. No one really knows why these people began trolling on social media. Many people believe these trolls do not have nice whips, or they'd likely be occupying their time with those. One thing is for sure there must be a large bridge in the world wide web, because there are certainly a-lot of trolls on the internet.

The first thing you should do if you are presented with one of these horrible internet creatures is to avoid becoming shook. Troll's are like dogs, and can smell fear. So you can't be afraid to clapback at a troll. Just remember a real G is likely to busy to be spending his or her time as a troll. This makes fighting against these monsters quite simple when you know how.

The first thing you may be able to do about a troll is drag them about their choice in fits. If the troll has pretty good clothing, and this is not an option you can always examine the quality of the bops that the troll is interested in. Another sure-fire way to bug trolls is to find out where that troll is employed, and call his boss. Perhaps the troll is doing-the-most at work looking for a promotion. Remember trolls also have real lives so never be afraid to high-key take the fight into the real world.

Once you have a troll crying for his wooby, you may be tempted to just throw up your arms and exclaim YAASS. Still your work is never done. Try to avoid future trolls by yeeting a self-drag every now and then. Then the troll will know that you mean business. Another great tip is to check your snap streaks. You look a-lot cooler if people are complaining that they left-me-onread.

Answer each of the following questions in the form of a sentence. If a question does not contain a vocabulary word from this lesson's word list, use one in your answer. Use each word only once.

1. What are some reasons why people may become salty on social media?

2. If things are not going well for someone on the internet what might they become?

3. What is the likelihood of a troll possessing a nice whip?

4. What is the first thing you should avoid if you encounter a troll online?

5. Why should you always clapback at a troll on the internet?

6. What kind of person is unlikely to be trolling on the internet?

7. If you notice that a troll has nice fits what another drag you can make?

8. If someone is doing-the-most at work they'll likely be afraid if you do what?

9. If you play your cards right, where will a troll run to?

10. Even though you have defeated a troll, what should you avoid doing?

11. It can never hurt to YEET what on social media?

12. Is it better to be on-read, or to leave others on-read?

4E PASSAGE

Read the passage below; then complete the exercise that follow it.

#Living-My-Best-Life

Once you have achieved a certain amount of clout you have a duty to let others know how sick your new lifestyle is. One very popular way of letting others know you are lit is by posting numerous selfies of your boujee lifestyle. These selfies can be posted on a variety of different social media apps. No matter what type of lifestyle you live there is always an appropriate selfie that can be taken to let the people in your sphere of influence know that you are #Living-My-Best-Life.

Are you a person with a really cool doggo? If so pictures walking said doggo, or dressing up your doggo in really cute fits are always appreciated. Do you have a favorite social issue? Are you currently occupying Wall-Street? Well then make sure to post some pictures at rally's so everyone knows how woke you are. Or maybe you really go-off at Fortnite, posting a picture of a victory royal never hurt anyone's online appearance.

If you fancy yourself a hype beast then make sure you make your way to a luxury clothing drop. If your friends don't say your new steez is Gucci then don't post a picture of your new gear. Occasionally something that looks really good in the store loses some of its appeal in the streets. If you are a gym rat, be sure to post lots of pictures of how swole you are. Only post these pictures if you are positive they are not cringey. If you post absurd gym pictures a number of bad things could happen to you.

Bad selfies can lead to a number of misfortunes. First off, your friends could be like, "really bruh?" If your pictures are lame enough some friends may just be so-done with you all together. Or worse of all, if you post some hard style pics you may be asking to Catch-a-Fade.

Answer each of the following questions in the form of a sentence. If a question does not contain a vocabulary word from this lesson's word list, use one in your answer. Use each word only once.

1. What's your duty after you have achieved a certain amount of clout?

2. What's one example of how you can show people how lit you are?

3. No matter what kind of lifestyle you are living you can always show people?

4. What kind of pictures are always appreciated?

5. If you are really woke, what type of selfies may you post to your online accounts?

6. What very popular game do people really like to see that you have gone-off in?

7. If you are a diligent hype beast what should you be doing during fashion season?

8. If your new fits aren't Gucci should you post selfies of them anyways?

9. If you're not extremely swole should you be posting gym selfies?

10. If you suspect that one of your selfies was cringey, should you still post that picture?

11. What could your friends tell you if you post a particularly cringey photo?

12. What could be a possible picture that could make your friends so-done with you?

13. If you post hard style pics, what might you catch?

5E PASSAGE

Read the passage below; then complete the exercise that follow it.

Avoiding Unwanted Attention

Sometimes if your lifestyle is completely on-fleek, you may draw attention from people who you do not wish to view your social media profiles. If you've recently created a song that slaps. The last thing that you need is a hater who may trigger you. A completely valid way to avoid unwanted attention from potential haters is to create a finsta account.

Once you've created a fake profile make sure you only let real-ones know about your fake account. Otherwise you may end up with wack people finding out about your valid fake account. Once you have set up a fake account and received quite a bit of clout, you still have to be careful about what you post on other people's profiles. Never post mood on other people's memes. Instead you should slide-into-dm's. This will help keep unwanted attention away from your fake profile.

Haters will also invade your real life, not just your social media profiles. There are several effective methods that can be used in order to get out of unwanted confrontations with others. One very effective method for long term avoidance is a serious case of Ligma. Don't hesitate to tell others that you have a very infectious case of the disease. If you find yourself cornered in an unavoidable situation never be afraid to tell someone you gotta-blast.

If you are able to finesse your haters you may find that people you really want to talk to are texting you HMU. Hopefully this is a person who you can be in a ship with. Other people will then view your new relationship and comment goals on your social media feed, Yahurd?

Answer each of the following questions in the form of a sentence. If a question does not contain a vocabulary word from this lesson's word list, use one in your answer. Use each word only once.

1. What may happen to you if your social media is on-fleek?

2. What's one reason why haters may flock to your social media profile?

3. What can haters do to you if you're not careful?

4. What's a valid way to keep from receiving unwanted attention from haters?

5. Who should you let know about your fake account, in order to avoid wack people?

6. Instead of posting mood, what tactic should you employ when talking to friends?

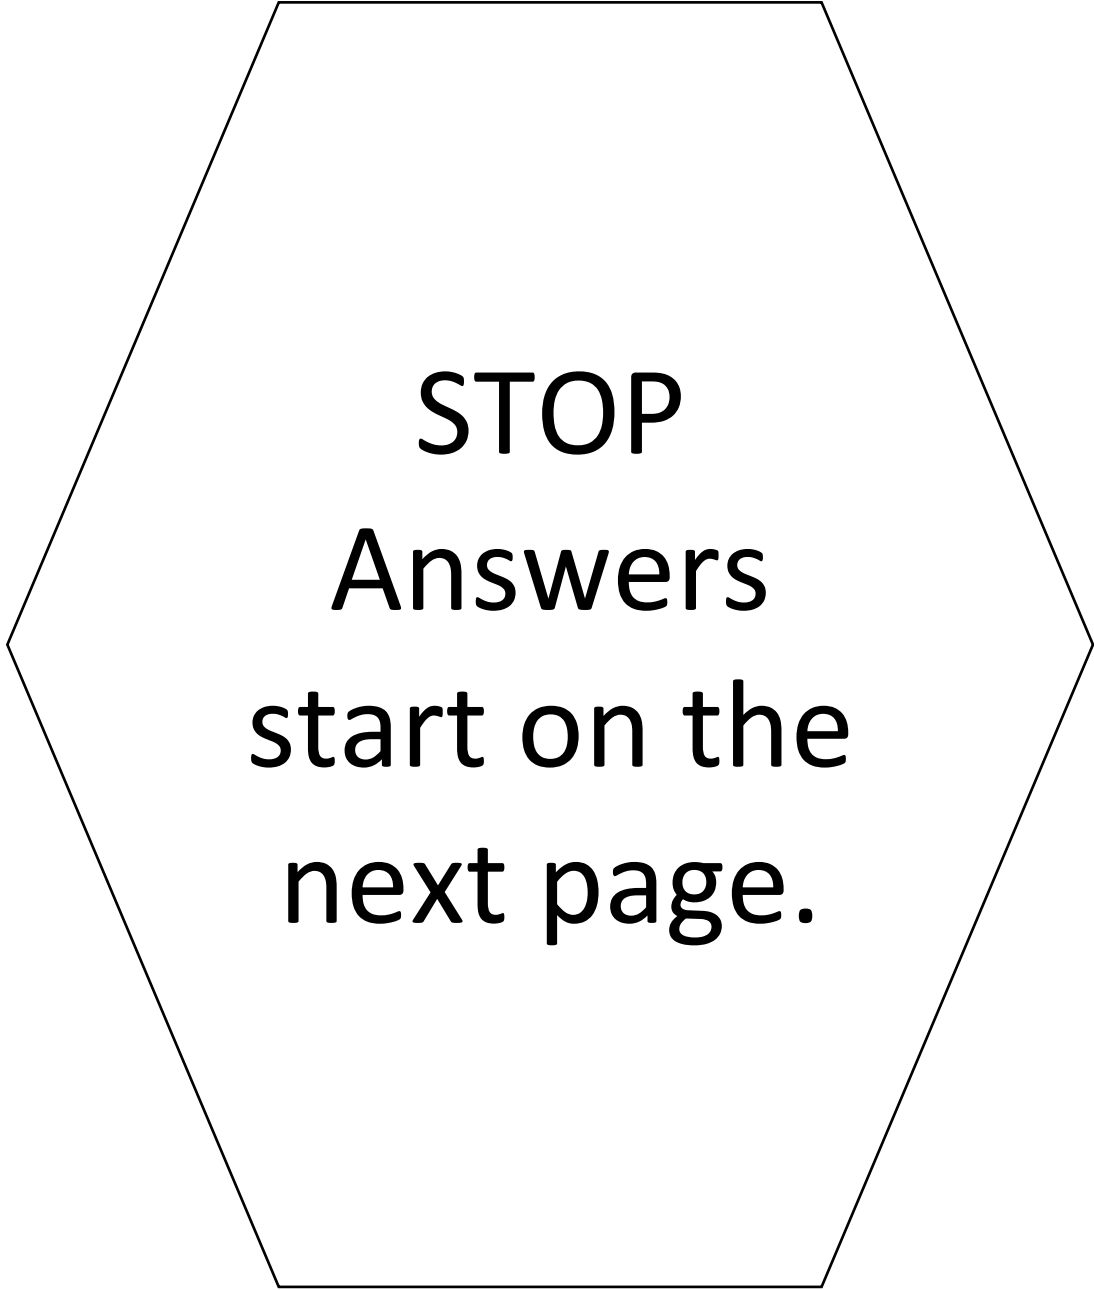

7. In real life what should you tell people if you are trying to avoid unwanted scenarios?

8. In an awkward situation what phrase can you use to escape?

9. If you're able to finesse your haters what may you find happening?

10. If people are always texting you hmu what may be the result of this?

11. You know that you're in a good ship if people post what on your posts?

1E PASSAGE

Read the passage below; then complete the exercise that follow it.

The Art of The Hustle

Most successful bread winners have many similarities. First off all of them are all finna' make a lot of money. While this is the main goal of any truly successful hustler the road to being one of the true real-ones on the road to greatness does not end there.

A skill needed on the road to the hustling hall of fame is the ability to stay low-key. Certain hustlers after achieving moderate levels of fame and influence, start tweakin' on the people around them e.g. Kanye West. Staying humble, and continuing to work even after you've achieved some success is quintessential to becoming one of the top hustlers in your sphere of influence.

Of course, most things that successful hustlers do after they make quite a bit of money is spend it on some clothes that really drip. Examples of clothes that would fit these descriptions are the brands Supreme, Gucci, and Versace. Of course, hustlers need to be careful that the clothes that they buy are not too extra. There is a very fine line between being a hustler, or a hardo.

Of course, there are many pitfalls in the art of the hustle. One of the biggest problems that befalls would be hustlers is people around them spilling too much tea. If your close associates are talking too much about your personal business a hustler may need to put these associates on-blast. If a hustler fails to keep his personal business personal then he or she may never achieve the ultimate goal of being one of the all-time greats.

One of the hallmarks of the hustler is the quality of the Jams he either creates or inspires. An example of someone who did not write his own raps, but inspired the raps that were written for him was Easy-E. Everyone knows that Ice Cube wrote most if not all of Easy-E's most successful raps. Still those raps were inspired by Easy-E so he was able to slay the verses written for him by Ice-Cube.

If you follow the instructions laid out here, and spend a significant amount of your time studying other great hustlers you may no-cap, be added to the hustling hall of fame. People will lose their minds when a true hustler pull's-up at the spot. Fail to follow these guidelines, and you may find yourself taking the L.

Answer each of the following questions in the form of a sentence. If a question does not contain a vocabulary word from this lesson's word list, use one in your answer. Use each word only once.

1. What is the main goal of any successful hustler?

They are finna make a lot of money.

2E PASSAGE

Read the passage below; then complete the exercise that follow it.

Social Media Savvy

If you live a particularly boujee lifestyle, then you may find yourself dealing with issues that arise due to the pervasive nature of social media. Hopefully some of the tips explored in this passage will prevent you from finding yourself being cancelled, by your numerous social media followers.

If you really want to have an excellent social media savvy you must concern yourself with having the most dank memes possible. Do not hesitate to flex by posting them to the rest of your social media followers. Be wary and always double check the memes you are attempting to post. If your not careful you could accidently post basic memes. If you are known for having dank memes your social media following may grow.

Be careful about who you attempt to drag, with your memes. Some people who are subject of such scrutiny may decide to send-it in your direction. You may think some people wouldn't mind being the subject of your memes, but you never know who out there in cyber-space is really hangry.

While trying to cultivate your social media following be sure not to SKRRT to hard. Many people may feel isolated by your massive social media following. Instead remember the words of the great poet Radrick Davis, "don't get lost in the sauce." If you get lost, don't be surprised if you find many of your friends telling you to @-me. You may also get ghosted by your friends if you hit the gas pedal too hard.

Carefully consider all the advice in this passage, hopefully you may find yourself a G.O.A.T of social media. If you refuse to take the advice of this passage you may find others saying R.I.P. when you pass by them in the real world.

Answer each of the following questions in the form of a sentence. If a question does not contain a vocabulary word from this lesson's word list, use one in your answer. Use each word only once.

1. Social media can become quite pervasive when you live what kind of lifestyle?

When you live a boujee lifestyle.

2. What may the tips explored in this article help you avoid?

These tips will help you not get cancelled.

3. If you have very dank memes what may happen to your social media following?

Your social media following may grow.

4. If you find an extremely dank meme what should you do with this pictograph?

You should use the meme to flex online.

5. Why should you always double check your memes before you post them?

Your memes may be basic if you do not.

6. If you're not careful about who you drag what could possibly happen to you?

Those people may send it, in your direction.

7. You never know when people in cyberspace are?

You never know if those people are hungry.

8. If you SKRRT too hard what are some of the possible consequences?

Some people may be isolated by your success.

9. What great poet coined the term "Lost in the Sauce?"

The great poet Redrick Davis coined the term.

10. If you follow the instructions in this article what may you be referred to as?

People may refer to you as the GOAT.

11. If you don't follow the advice in this article what may people say about you?

People may say R.I.P. As you walk by.

3E PASSAGE

Read the passage below; then complete the exercise that follow it.

The Troll Under the Bridge

Some salty people on the internet have nothing better to do but bother others. No one really knows why these people began trolling on social media. Many people believe these trolls do not have nice whips, or they'd likely be occupying their time with those. One thing is for sure there must be a large bridge in the world wide web, because there are certainly a-lot of trolls on the internet.

The first thing you should do if you are presented with one of these horrible internet creatures is to avoid becoming shook. Troll's are like dogs, and can smell fear. So you can't be afraid to clapback at a troll. Just remember a real G is likely to busy to be spending his or her time as a troll. This makes fighting against these monsters quite simple when you know how.

The first thing you may be able to do about a troll is drag them about their choice in fits. If the troll has pretty good clothing, and this is not an option you can always examine the quality of the bops that the troll is interested in. Another sure-fire way to bug trolls is to find out where that troll is employed, and call his boss. Perhaps the troll is doing-the-most at work looking for a promotion. Remember trolls also have real lives so never be afraid to high-key take the fight into the real world.

Once you have a troll crying for his wooby, you may be tempted to just throw up your arms and exclaim YAASS. Still your work is never done. Try to avoid future trolls by yeeting a self-drag every now and then. Then the troll will know that you mean business. Another great tip is to check your snap streaks. You look a-lot cooler if people are complaining that they left-me-onread.

Answer each of the following questions in the form of a sentence. If a question does not contain a vocabulary word from this lesson's word list, use one in your answer. Use each word only once.

1. What are some reasons why people may become salty on social media?

People are salty, because they don't have new whips.

2. If things are not going well for someone on the internet what might they become?

Those people may become trolls.

3. What is the likelihood of a troll possessing a nice whip?

The likelihood is slim to none.

4. What is the first thing you should avoid if you encounter a troll online?

You must avoid becoming shook when dealing with trolls.

5. Why should you always clapback at a troll on the internet?

Trolls are like sharks and need a good clapback.

6. What kind of person is unlikely to be trolling on the internet?

A Real G is unlikely trolling on the internet.

7. If you notice that a troll has nice fits what another drag you can make?

If a troll has nice fits tease his Jam's.

8. If someone is doing-the-most at work they'll likely be afraid if you do what?

Trolls will be afraid if you bring the fight to the Real world.

9. If you play your cards right, where will a troll run to?

If you play your cards right a troll will run for his wooby.

10. Even though you have defeated a troll, what should you avoid doing?

You should avoid throwing up your arms and saying Yass.

11. It can never hurt to YEET what on social media?

It can never hurt to yeet a self-Drag on social media.

12. Is it better to be on-read, or to leave others on-read?

Leaving others on-read is better.

4E PASSAGE

Read the passage below; then complete the exercise that follow it.

#Living-My-Best-Life

Once you have achieved a certain amount of clout you have a duty to let others know how sick your new lifestyle is. One very popular way of letting others know you are lit is by posting numerous selfies of your boujee lifestyle. These selfies can be posted on a variety of different social media apps. No matter what type of lifestyle you live there is always an appropriate selfie that can be taken to let the people in your sphere of influence know that you are #Living-My-Best-Life.

Are you a person with a really cool doggo? If so pictures walking said doggo, or dressing up your doggo in really cute fits are always appreciated. Do you have a favorite social issue? Are you currently occupying Wall-Street? Well then make sure to post some pictures at rally's so everyone knows how woke you are. Or maybe you really go-off at Fortnite, posting a picture of a victory royal never hurt anyone's online appearance.

If you fancy yourself a hype beast then make sure you make your way to a luxury clothing drop. If your friends don't say your new steez is Gucci then don't post a picture of your new gear. Occasionally something that looks really good in the store loses some of its appeal in the streets. If you are a gym rat, be sure to post lots of pictures of how swole you are. Only post these pictures if you are positive they are not cringey. If you post absurd gym pictures a number of bad things could happen to you.

Bad selfies can lead to a number of misfortunes. First off, your friends could be like, "really bruh?" If your pictures are lame enough some friends may just be so-done with you all together. Or worse of all, if you post some hard style pics you may be asking to Catch-a-Fade.

Answer each of the following questions in the form of a sentence. If a question does not contain a vocabulary word from this lesson's word list, use one in your answer. Use each word only once.

1. What's your duty after you have achieved a certain amount of clout?

5E PASSAGE

Read the passage below; then complete the exercise that follow it.

Avoiding Unwanted Attention

Sometimes if your lifestyle is completely on-fleek, you may draw attention from people who you do not wish to view your social media profiles. If you've recently created a song that slaps. The last thing that you need is a hater who may trigger you. A completely valid way to avoid unwanted attention from potential haters is to create a finsta account.

Once you've created a fake profile make sure you only let real-ones know about your fake account. Otherwise you may end up with wack people finding out about your valid fake account. Once you have set up a fake account and received quite a bit of clout, you still have to be careful about what you post on other people's profiles. Never post mood on other people's memes. Instead you should slide-into-dm's. This will help keep unwanted attention away from your fake profile.

Haters will also invade your real life, not just your social media profiles. There are several effective methods that can be used in order to get out of unwanted confrontations with others. One very effective method for long term avoidance is a serious case of Ligma. Don't hesitate to tell others that you have a very infectious case of the disease. If you find yourself cornered in an unavoidable situation never be afraid to tell someone you gotta-blast.

If you are able to finesse your haters you may find that people you really want to talk to are texting you HMU. Hopefully this is a person who you can be in a ship with. Other people will then view your new relationship and comment goals on your social media feed, Yahurd?

Answer each of the following questions in the form of a sentence. If a question does not contain a vocabulary word from this lesson's word list, use one in your answer. Use each word only once.

1. What may happen to you if your social media is on-fleek?

If your social media account is on-fleek, you may draw unwanted attention.

2. What's one reason why haters may flock to your social media profile?

Haters may flock if you created a song that slaps.

3. What can haters do to you if you're not careful?

Haters may trigger you if you're not careful.

4. What's a valid way to keep from receiving unwanted attention from haters?

A valid way to avoid unwanted attention is creating a Finsta.

5. Who should you let know about your fake account, in order to avoid wack people?

You should only let real ones know about your Finsta.

6. Instead of posting mood, what tactic should you employ when talking to friends?

You should slide-into-Dm's.

7. In real life what should you tell people if you are trying to avoid unwanted scenarios?

You should tell others that you have Ligma.

8. In an awkward situation what phrase can you use to escape?

You can always say gotta-blast.

9. If you're able to finesse your haters what may you find happening?

You may find some quality friends.

10. If people are always texting you hmu what may be the result of this?

You could possibly end up in a ship.

11. You know that you're in a good ship if people post what on your posts?

You are in a good ship if people post goals on your ship pics.
